Five-Star Review, Readers Favorite

Years ago, Kristin A. Oakley wrote "The Bomb," a flash fiction piece about a character named Paul. At the time, she was also working on the third book in the award-winning Leo Townsend series, but Paul couldn't be ignored and The Devil Particle series was born. The four-book series begins with The Devil Particle (2023) and continues with The Vessel (2023). The Runner (Book 3) and The Renegade (Book 4) will be released in 2024. In addition to creating Paul and Leo's stories, Kristin reviews books and writes about being a novelist in her newsletter, available at <https://kristinoakley.net/>. She has a BA in psychology and a J.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and lives in the Milwaukee area where she hangs out in coffee shops, writing characters into impossible situations.

THE SERIES CONTINUES . . .

The final act churns out several impressive shocks and ends on a cliffhanger that will leave readers yearning for the series' third installment . . . A...gripping tale that boosts a remarkable SF series. - Kirkus Reviews

Scientists attempt to save humanity by implanting all the world's evil into one human vessel. Will it work?

Seventeen-year-old Paul Salvage competed and won the honor of becoming that Vessel. When scientists encase the particles in Paul, the evil transforms him, cures his amnesia, and makes him remember his own act of rage. With this revelation, Paul questions whether he'll be able to control the devil particles coursing through him. Will he be able to save the world, or will he destroy it?

Heart-pounding, page-turning, action from beginning to end!
- Valerie Biel, author of the award-winning Circle of Nine series

Provocative and disquieting. You'll be thinking about this book and its thorny dilemma well after you've turned the last page.
